Bruce Baker, a partner at AGM Surveying and Engineering proudly displays AGM's five Supplier of the Year awards.

On October 3, over 400 people were in attendance at the London Home Builders' Association's annual Awards for Excellence Gala. AGM Surveying and Engineering was honoured to be selected as the LHBA's "Supplier of the Year" for the fifth time in seven years.

The Supplier of the Year award recognizes excellence in products and services of its members by highlighting the supplier that sets the standard for the rest of the industry. This year, there were five finalists in the Supplier of the Year category. AGM was nominated by one of their customers.

The LHBA surveys all builder and renovator members of the Association for feedback on the performance of all suppliers who are nominated. Areas of judging include technical competence, new product trends, quality of workmanship, price competitiveness, customer service and overall customer recommendations.

Lois Langdon, Executive Officer of the Association, commented on AGM's sterling performance as a supplier member.

"The Awards of Creative Excellence" are the Oscars for the construction industry. They allow the Association to give well deserved recognition for the outstanding talents and achievements of members by showcasing their projects both to the public and to their peers. AGM's award as 2007 Supplier of the Year recognizes the value of their outstanding service to the builder and renovator members of the LHBA and as it is their fifth win of this prestigious award it is proof that they are setting the standard for the industry."

The LHBA membership accounts for 88% of all new homes built in this area. It includes 150 plus subcontractors, suppliers, many large corporations and numerous members of supporting professions.

AGM thanks the Association and all of the members who completed surveys for their confidence in the work we do. Bruce Baker, a partner at AGM summed this year's honour up. "Every day, our people bring leading edge skills and their attitude of service to meet the needs of our customers. It is gratifying to have their efforts recognized by the members of the LHBA."
